Eugene W. Peyton Resigns As Director of Instruction

At a recent meeting of the Appomattox County School Board Eugene W. Peyton, Director of Instruction, submitted his resignation. In his letter of resignation he made the following comments:

"You, as members of the School Board, have every reason to be proud of the advancements which have been made in the field of education in Appomattox County. You will recall that in 1967, with the schools facing unification, the Board, under Mr. Smith's leadership, examined critically the instructional programs, organizational patterns, and facilities in use within the County. As a result of the Board's farsightedness, the educational program has advanced in many areas. A program of continuous progress has been organized at the primary level and extended through the upper elementary level. Pamplin School has initiated a program utilizing the open space concept for learning. The middle school organization will be realized for seventh and eighth graders next year within the present high school facility. The secondary program, which underwent a self study and "standard" evaluation, continues its emphasis in developing individual potential, whether in preparation for college or the job market. The new Appomattox County High School, a vision in 1967, has fast become a reality and will house grades 9 -12 in the Fall. Special Education has been expanded in the county and Kindergarten was offered on a full-time basis this school year. It has been an honor for me to watch these advancements develop within our school system."

"Realizing what is being accomplished, and what is to be achieved in the future, it is extremely difficult for me to resign my position as Director of Instruction. My decision comes after much procrastina-

Appomattox Teacher Retires

Mrs. Susie Moon Martin

Mrs. Susie Moon Martin, who had served the Appomattox Schools since 1966, found it necessary to apply for early retirement because of illness within her immediate family. Her most recent experience was teaching the fifth grade at Appomattox Intermediate School with previous service at Spout Spring Elementary School.

Mrs. Martin received the Normal Professional Certificate from State Teachers College in Farmville. She began her teaching career in 1930 in Bedford County where she taught for nine years. During this time she taught in the Gillaspie and Sedalia Elementary Schools and at Huddleston High School. The elementary schools were one-room organizations and Mrs. Martin recalls her experiences there as being extremely interesting ones since she taught grades 1-7 in these situations.

During Mrs. Martin's fifteen years of teaching, which

Community Arts & Crafts Center To Open In Appomattox Station

Appomattox County contains a great number of people who sew, carve, paint, weave, mold, or otherwise create items related to the life and culture of this historic land. Few, if any, of these artists and craftsmen have any means of advertising, displaying, or selling their products except on a very limited scale. Many are retirees with limited income.

A community arts and crafts center in downtown Appomattox will improve the economic and social well-being of the people while at the same time raise the cultural level of the area; it will help build local pride in local arts and crafts. New opportunities will be provided all kinds of citizens - young and old alike. Furthermore, an arts and crafts center located in the Appomattox Depot will increase resident and tourist traffic and trade to the downtown area, a concept in keeping with the "Appomattox Downtown Project."

TOWN COUNCIL APPROVES PROPOSAL
